

Cellists tune up for gig

CELLO fever hits Port Talbot this week with a remarkable concert taking place in the town.

A group of 13 cellists, all from South Wales and performing under the collective name of Celloffonic, will be in concert at St Mary's Church on Thursday.

Joining them will be local young musicians, taking the total number of cellos being played during the second half to 35.

The concert will be conducted by Paul Lewis, who teaches music at several schools in Port Talbot.

Celloffonic will start at 7.15pm.